What You'll Learn

- ☑ Communication Skills: How to sound insightful in meetings while saying nothing of substance
- ☑ The Power of Workplace Optics: Perfecting your "I'm swamped" facial expressions and body language
- ☑ Email & Slack Hacks: Crafting messages that look important but don't commit you to real work
- ☑ Meeting Manipulation: Stretching discussions to fill time and avoiding actionable takeaways
- ☑ Tech & Digital Strategies: Using AI, automation, and strategic keyboard shortcuts to simulate productivity
- ☑ Task Management Tactics: How to turn a simple task into an all-day affair
- ☑ The Art of Looking Stressed: Subtle ways to make everyone think you're overworked
- ☑ Workplace Politics: Taking credit without taking responsibility
- ☑ Procrastination & Delegation: When and how to pass off work without looking lazy

Who is This Course For?

- ✔ Professionals looking to optimize effort while maximizing career growth
- ✔ Managers and employees who want to appear highly productive without burnout
- ✔ Remote workers seeking strategies to look engaged on Zoom while multitasking
- ✔ Entrepreneurs and freelancers who need to juggle multiple projects without stress
- ✔ Anyone interested in corporate survival techniques and business humor

Description

In today's fast-paced business world, perception is everything. While some employees grind away for long hours, the true masters of corporate success know that looking busy is often just as important as being busy. This course is designed to teach professionals at all levels the subtle yet powerful techniques for maintaining an air of productivity while preserving time and energy for what really matters—whether that's side projects, personal growth, or just surviving the 9-to-5 with minimal stress.

Through a mix of practical strategies, psychological insights, and real-world case studies, you'll learn how to appear engaged, indispensable, and overworked—without actually doing much at all. From perfecting your office body language to crafting the perfect "urgent" email, this course provides everything you need to navigate corporate life like a pro.
